ALFIE NORVILLE TO BE HONORED POSTHUMOUSLY WITH 2016 GEORGY AWARD AT ARIZONA THEATRE COMPANY GALA, OCT. 1

TUCSON, Ariz. (August 10, 2016): Alfie Norville, who was among the founders of Arizona Theatre Company (ATC), will be honored posthumously with the 2016 Georgy Award at ATC's Gala 2016: Celebrating 50 Years on Saturday, Oct. 1 from 5-11 p.m. at the Temple of Music and Art, 330 S. Scott Ave. Norville's husband of 49 years, Allan, will accept the award on her behalf. Patti Norville Spector is the gala chair.

The annual event includes a silent auction, dinner and entertainment. Individual tickets are $200 each and tables of ten can be purchased for $2000. Gala sponsorships are available. For information, visit www.arizonatheatre.org.

Georgy Award honoree Norville, who passed away in 2015, moved to Arizona more than 50 years ago, became a passionate UofA Wildcat fan. Raised in Koontz Lake, Indiana, she owned a farm in Walkerton and later worked as a contractor in Chicago, which led to an appearance in 1960 on the television show "What's My Line."

When the couple first moved to Tucson, "we didn't have any money, so we gave our time and effort," Allan told Tucson Lifestyle magazine. "Alfie sewed costumes for Arizona Theatre Company and I was an usher and the treasurer."

Alfie, Tucson's first licensed woman stockbroker, was an incredible community volunteer, serving on the boards of directors of the University of Arizona, Sarver Heart Center and Arizona Astronomy Board and as President of Altrusa International, Inc. The inspiration and founder of the Gem and Jewelry Exchange, their philanthropic efforts resulted in the Philanthropists of the Year Award from the Steven M. Gootter Foundation and Diamond of the Community Award from Catholic Community Services. The Association of Fundraising Professionals named Alan and Alfie Norville as the Outstanding Philanthropists of the Year in 2011. In 2006, she was named a “Remarkable Mom” by Tu Nidito Children and Family Services of Tucson.

The Norville’s have funded the Allan and Alfie Norville Endowed Chair for Heart Disease in Women Research at the University of Arizona Sarver Heart Center and they are charter members of the University of Arizona Foundation’s 1885 Society, a donor leadership group.
